Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 28 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
A bright evening. Coastal fog developing overnight.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry with variable amounts of cloud but some clear spells at times, particularly away from the coast. Low cloud and sea fog moving inland from the east overnight with a chance of some fine drizzle. Locally chilly. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Saturday:
Rather cloudy at first but some decent spells of sunshine developing in the afternoon. Largely dry although the odd shower cannot be ruled out. Warmer. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Dry and warm through this period but perhaps cooler along the coast, with a chance of low cloud and fog at times, mainly overnight.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.